

Kameron Kierce

Teaching Artist - Instructor

Kameron is a Georgia native who fell in love with the stage in his youth. By High School, he was performing and studying all throughout the Atlanta and Gwinnett area.

After studying almost every aspect of theatre and film inside and out and he soon knew he wanted to tell stories that change hearts and minds. From sharing the screen with Taraji P. Henson to Kevin Bacon he's also had the privilege of performing at venues like Alliance Theatre, 7 Stages, and Fox's Egyptian Ballroom to name a few.

His favorite theatrical credits include Les Misérables, Yeah I Said It, The Color Purple, Detroit 67' and The Collision Project. He aims to serve his community nothing but the truth, opening hearts and minds in the process. Working with a diverse range of students, Kameron aims for everyone to feel closer towards freedom in their work.

Education: Carnegie Mellon School of Drama (BFA), Tri-Cities School for the Arts, University of NC School for the Arts (Pre College Program).
